

Kathryn Mansfield
Westbrook

I began smoking full flavored (red) cigarettes as a teenager. At my worst I was smoking a pack to a pack and a half of cigarettes daily. Once I had turned 19 I switched to electronic vaporizers. Since then, I have not smoked a cigarette. The flavors of the e-liquid deter me from even attempting to smoke tobacco. I feel much better ever since I had switched, both physically and mentally. My father died as a result of cigarette smoking. I ask the state to stop taking away the opportunity to switch off of cigarettes with the flavor ban. Not only would you be taking away flavoring, you would be destroying businesses that help normal people switch off of combustible cigarettes.