

Joseph Grady
Harpswell

I write today in full support of this bill. Mandating vaccines that are not fully tested over the long term and over a wide demographic goes against basic bioethical benchmark practice and norms. Furthermore it is now beyond dispute that these products do not prevent infection or transmission, this then begs the question of how and why these would be held up as protection from this virus and forced on folks to keep a job or enter a building. We have lost the thread here and need to take a hard look at these policies and these products.