I have only lived in Maine for 1 year and have already found the business practices of many contractors to be reprehensible. Story after story of shoddy work or worse, contractors taking money and not providing the service. I personally I am in a situation where a contractor is not delivering on his promises. I may be one of the lucky homeowners, as my contractor is now looking for a solution that will keep both parties happy. Risk of losing a license or fines could go a long way in getting contractors to operate in good faith.
