

Mike Choate
Albion

There is supposed to be a separation of church and state and since 1883, the church has been appeased so that men would attend church with their families on Sunday. I completely oppose any law that imposes religion on me and my life. Many working outdoorsmen and women have to work 6 days a week and being able to hunt on Sunday would give them more opportunities and potentially inject more money into our hunting economy. I support expanding Sunday hunting in Maine to attract out of state hunters and bring in much needed money into our rural Maine hunting economy. I feel an inability to hunt on Sunday discourages them from coming to Maine to hunt. I support Sunday hunting in Maine because no viable evidence supporting all the arguments has been proven when all the other states have progressed away from these ridiculous blue laws. While you are at it, let me buy a car on Sunday too. When churches start paying taxes, I might consider their opinion about what days I need to take off to buy necessary items or take vacation time.