

Troy Ellis
Clinton

Sunday hunting is a pleasure enjoyed widely across the country. So widely that very few states have no form of Sunday hunting.

On top of Sunday hunting being so widespread it is a gross over reach for the state to tell land owners they can not hunt on their own property on a Sunday. Private landowners are the heart of hunting in Maine. It isn't much to ask for to be able to hunt our own property on Sunday.

To the land owners that don't like the idea it needs to be known landowners have the right to allow or prohibit hunting or access on any day this want.

To non-land owners. You have no right to tell a land owner what they can and can not do. You should have absolutely no say in the matter.