Thank you to the committee for taking the time to read my testimony in consideration of this important issue. In a digital age such as ours, as a society we need to work to catch our laws up with how people are using the digital tools that at our fingertips all day, every day. While these tools can be used for good, they can also be used to cause harm to others. There are far too many instances in which vulnerable individuals, such as children, are harassed, bullied, threatened, and intimidated through the use of social media. One of the worst forms of harassment and intimidation is doxxing. Putting a minor's information out into the public sphere without a parent or guardian's permission can open that minor up to significant harassment, and a heightened potential for physical danger. In Maine, we value children. We need to ensure that we have laws in place to protect them in the digital sphere. Thank you.
