I am writing to oppose LD 667.

A machine gun, by definition, is a firearm that shoots more than one round when the trigger is pressed.

There is no standardized rate of fire for a semi-automatic. Any action attained by so-called bump stocks or other devices can all be achieved with a thumb hooked through a beltloop. Is that State of Maine going to ban beltloops? Thumbs?

This already failed last time it was introduced. It should fail this time as well.

Garland v. Cargill has already been decided on this issue.

This poorly thought out piece of legislation should not go any further than this committee.
