I oppose this bill because not only should a woman have her choice, access to safe healthcare, but the state should consider the finances. The cost of abortion is significantly less than supporting a child for up to 18 years with healthcare, food assistance, housing assistance and more. Since I believe in assisting those who need it is important, I think forcing women who are already in financial crisis to pay out of pocket or have another child is wrong. This protects these women and the Maine taxpayers.
