

Steve Hanrahan
Harborside
LD 2003

I do not believe that the state should have the right to dictate to a community how they should use their land or allocate their housing. Every village, town and city should be able to determine their own look and maintain their heritage without the input or mandates from people who do not reside in or have direct involvement in that community. I know you don't want me to come to your town and tell what your town should look like. Does anyone read the state or federal Constitutions any more?