

The Founders of this great nation formed a government that was of, by and for the people of these United States. Unfortunately our relationship with each other as citizens has become very strained. Political advisors have deliberately created factions in order to arouse fiery 'issue driven' passions in their constituents in hopes of gaining votes as well as to gain greater political campaign funds. The cost of these foolish actions has removed civil discourse and polarized the State of Maine as well as our entire Union.

Now we find our nation overrun with politicians who do not serve their constituents but rather their own ambitions. The lust for personal power or wealth by those sworn to serve in government has brought us to the brink of ruin. Such personal ambitions should be kept out of politics or any other public service. Let those with personal ambitions stay in the private sector where they can go as far as their ambitions may legally take them.

Is the dream of the Founders of this great land nothing but a dream of fools or can we overcome our current political climate? Will the ambitions of a few global elites now rule over this land which claims to be for a free people? Will those oligarchs who have already silenced the voice of "We The People" through their imbedded networks of power, (being rapidly dispensed via social and main stream media) continue? Governor Mills do you think these global oligarchs will actually include you into their spoils if they become completely successful?

The recent promises of protection by a 'nanny government' has had far too high of a price tag. Those tactics have been employed many times in world history and all those experiments ended with poverty and great human tragedy. All those horrors of the past started with political ambition. It is time to choose whether we will allow ourselves to continue down this road or return to a government of personal freedom and a government that is "of the people" where many can prosper and not just the few.

Brad Saunders
Hebron, Maine

Bradley Saunders
Hebron

Maine Public Hearing (LD 1039)

March 29 2021

The Founders of this great nation formed a government that was of, by and for the people of these United States. Unfortunately our relationship with each other as citizens has become very strained. Political advisors have deliberately created factions in order to arouse fiery 'issue driven' passions in their constituents in hopes of gaining votes as well as to gain greater political campaign funds. The cost of these foolish actions has removed civil discourse and polarized the State of Maine as well as our entire Union.

Now we find our nation overrun with politicians who do not serve their constituents but rather their own ambitions. The lust for personal power or wealth by those sworn to serve in government has brought us to the brink of ruin. Such personal ambitions should be kept out of politics or any other public service. Let those with personal ambitions stay in the private sector where they can go as far as their ambitions may legally take them.

Is the dream of the Founders of this great land nothing but a dream of fools or can we overcome our current political climate? Will the ambitions of a few global elites now rule over this land which claims to be for a free people? Will those oligarchs who have already greatly silenced the voice of "We The People" through their imbedded networks of power, (being rapidly dispensed via social and main stream media) continue? Governor Mills do you think these global oligarchs will actually include you into their spoils if they become completely successful?

The recent promises of protection by a 'nanny government' has had far too high of a price tag. Those tactics have been employed many times in world history and all those experiments ended with poverty and great human tragedy. All those horrors of the past started with political ambition. It is time to choose whether we will allow ourselves to continue down this road or return to a government of personal freedom and a government that is "of the people" where many can prosper and not just the few.

Brad Saunders
Hebron, Maine