

Andrew McRichards
Honest Property Management

I own a property management company in Maine and own a number of properties here myself. It is in the public interest for a state to have consistent laws from place to place. It is administratively burdensome to allow municipalities to create independent and conflicting rules. This should be decided at the state level.