I'm writing in support of building a bike/pedestrian trail on the existing but currently unused rail corridor. I can think of nothing that could do more to revitalize the economy of this area as well as provide a much needed place for residents to safely recreate. I believe the creation of a scenic trail connecting Fryeburg to greater Portland would truly be transformative for this corner of Maine and make it a destination for people who might not otherwise visit our towns.

And on a personal note, if the trail existed today I'd use it regularly to cycle from my home in Brownfield to my shop in Hiram. I won't ride a bike on Rt 113 because I feel it's much too dangerous these days.
