I am a resident of Swan's Island, in Hancock County. I am very concerned about our Maine State Ferry, being berthed on the mainland overnight. The ferryboat is our lifeline to emergency care of all kind.

When the ferry first arrived on Swan's Island in 1960 we have had the ability to call for help. I myself made a midnight ride on the William Silby in August 1967 to give birth to a baby boy. This is a vital part of our Island lifestyle. The reason for berthing the Ferry overnight, on the mainland is not critical to our survival. Thank you, one elderly woman.
