

Jake claudino
SANFORD

The medical marijuana program here in Maine has allowed myself and many other small businesses a way to provide a living for our families and ourselves. Any changes to the current medical marijuana program may negatively impact the program which could drastically change our businesses futures as well as our many of our lives. Increasing the plant count will allow for Caregivers like myself a way to cultivate more medical cannabis for the patients in need. We are small businesses, We are farmers and most importantly we are Mainers just trying to provide for our families, patients and community like any other business here in state.