

Nate Burdick
Porter
LD 104

Maines medical cannabis community has become one of the best regarded in the country without testing. Testing at this scale will not only hurt the cultivators (especially the small craft ones) but hurt the patients who seek variety. Testing has proven to be unreliable and the total yeast and mold value is practically sterile (and doesnt capture powdery mildew). This market has regulated itself and the type of people shopping in our med market can tell if something is garvage before ingesting it. If this happens, most often the cultivator or shop is called out and will fail if it doesnt change. Less money involved, less corruption. This bill will utterly destroy Maines medical cannabis industry.