

Nate Burdick
Porter
LD 1567

Are there any studies of the long term damage of smoking moldy cannabis treated with ozone and then labeled safe? This seems insanely dangerous. I think the state needs to look at testing requirements and educate itself on what is actually unsafe before all cannabis products just bypass the testing (and failing) and just go straight to remediation. This area to me needs a complete reset and in the meantime consumers should be aware (just like food packaging that is labeled when remediated).